65th Medical Group welcomes commander

The 65th Medical Group held a change of command ceremony July 3 as outgoing commander Lt. Col. John Seimetz, turned over command of the group to Lt. Col. Roy Ruff Jr.

Ruff, a South Carolina native, arrives at Lajes after a tour at Randolph AFB, Texas where he was chief of Medical Service Corps Officer Assignments and Education.

"I'm delighted to be here among such a group of professionals," Ruff said. "I want to thank everyone who came to the change of command and who has made my family and I so very welcome during our first few days here."

The colonel said that his impression of professionalism has changed somewhat after only a few days on base. "I thought I knew what it was to be a professional, but the teamwork and outpouring of hospitality I've seen here set the standards for others to emulate," he said. "I'm looking forward to the challenges of following (Lt. Col. Seimetz) John. I know he's been busy with the hospital move and many other issues, but I also know his success is a reflection of the hard work of every member of the 65th Medical Group. I could not have hand-picked a better group of people for this unit and I'm proud to have been chosen for this assignment."

Phone bills due late

The computer equipment used to update phone bill listings so payments can be automatically deducted from paychecks has been sent off-island for repairs. People are reminded that their July paychecks may not reflect the phone bill deduction.

The payment will be added to the August phone bills and taken out of August paychecks. Finance officials remind everyone to plan accordingly for the extra expense.

Comptrollers, contracting get new commanders

The 65th Comptroller Flight and Contracting Squadron each welcomed new commanders Tuesday during a change and an assumption of command respectively.

Maj. Terry Ross, a recent graduate of the Air War College took over command of the 65th CPTF from Capt. Nicholas Johnston.

During an afternoon ceremony at the community center, Capt. Mark Dillon assumed command of the contracting unit. Dillon was last the aide de camp to the commander, Defense Contract Management Command at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Suggestion earns NCO over $2,000

A good idea that works is a thing of beauty.

But, guess what? It doesn't buy you and your family a vacation to Europe.

Not true if you're TSgt. Tod Vanscoy and family. Vanscoy, chief of service contracts for the 65th Civil Engineer Squadron, put his good idea down on paper and the payoff is a check for $2,075.

"I was shocked when I found out how much the check was for," Vanscoy said. "When I filled out the Air Force Form 1000, I was just hoping someone would notice it was a good idea that made sense and do it."

The Air Force shouldn't ask for the money back though, that's been spent before its cashed. "When I told my wife about the award, she told me we were going to pay some bills and visit relatives in Germany - so we're going to take a vacation."

Vanscoy's idea, to him, was simplicity and common sense in itself. The base housing units are painted by contract every time an occupant leaves - about three-quarters of them are painted annually.

"The paint they use in the houses is a flat latex paint which cannot be cleaned," Vanscoy said. "Ask anyone with kids and they'll tell you that once you bump into one of these walls or make a mark on that paint, it won't come off."

By using a semi-gloss latex paint, housing occupants can clean their walls and thereby decrease the need for repainting the house each time a family vacates a unit.

"It will cost a little more the first time we have to paint the houses with the new paint," he said. "However, the payoff should happen rapidly after that."

Currently the base spends about $400,000 per year in painting costs. Vanscoy hopes to see a 25 percent savings through the implementation of the new paint scheme.

Dedication honors hero

TSgt. Karen Ernst

If you have visited the Lajes Passenger Terminal lately, you have probably noticed some changes. The $600,000 renovation project started in September and is nearly complete. The renovation has transformed an out dated terminal into a modern one with some of the changes including: a baggage conveyer system for both inbound and outbound baggage; a realignment of the terminal sections in order to provide better customer service to the Lajes community; and improvements to enhance the appearance of both the interior and exterior of the building.

To celebrate the completion of the renovation, we will be having a grand reopening of the terminal Thursday at 10 a.m. During the ceremony we will honor Lajes' own Medal of Honor recipient, Lt. Col. Edward S. Michael, by renaming the terminal, the Michael Passenger Terminal.

Colonel Michael received his Medal of Honor for his heroic actions during World War II. He was a B17G pilot flying in a bombing raid over Germany on April 11, 1944, when a German fighter attacked and tore into his plane badly damaging it and setting the loaded bomb bay on fire. Colonel Michael was severely wounded and bleeding profusely from his leg. Seven of the crewmembers bailed out, but the other three including Colonel Michael, discovered they only had two parachutes between them. They decided that if they could not jump together, they would save the plane, called the Bertie Lee, or go down together. Colonel Michael piloted the aircraft through an incredible aerial running battle all the way back through occupied Europe to crash land in England.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt awarded Colonel Michael the Medal of Honor at the White House on Jan. 11, 1945. The two crewmembers who stayed with him were at his side.

Lt. Col. Edward S. Michael was stationed at Lajes Field from 1964-1966. He worked as the aerial port officer in the same building being renovated. His wife Louise and him had very close ties with the Portuguese community and adopted a 6-week old Portuguese daughter.

Colonel Michael retired at Travis AFB, Calif. in 1971. He passed away in May 1994.

We are honored to have Louise Michael, his wife, as our guest of honor for the dedication ceremony.

There will also be a pre-dedication dinner held at the Portuguese Sargentos Club Wednesday at 6 p.m.

If you are interested in attending the dinner, contact TSgt. Karen Ernst or SrA. Angeline Richard at Ext. 23227 or see your squadron first sergeant.

Air Force Worldview

People first

PERSTEMPO discussed

Question: I have gone on a number of deployments the last few years and spent a lot of time away from my family. What is the Air Force doing to reduce the amount of time people have to spend away from home?

Answer: You're talking about PERSTEMPO — and we're doing a lot. Some definitions are necessary before we can talk about initiatives. "PERSTEMPO" measures the amount of time Air Force personnel are away from home and includes all types of TDYs — a day away is a day away.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Ronald Fogleman established a "goal" that no one should be away from their home duty station more than 120 days a year. While we may not always reach that goal, we're getting close. Only about 3 percent of the force was deployed more than 120 days last year.

Reducing PERSTEMPO continues to be a major interest item for our senior leaders, and we continue to look for ways to balance mission needs with quality of life for all Air Force members. Here are some ideas we're working:

- Post deployment stand-downs for units and individuals returning from deployments
- Reduced or combined inspections and exercises
- Priority medical care for families of deployed members
- Improved communications between deployed members and their families through morale phone calls and video links
- Ombudsman program to provide support to families of deployed members (program is entering test phase in mid July for six months at six bases).

Antenna policy

What is the policy on TV antennas for satellite dishes and is there any plan to include channels on base?

Thanks for the opportunity to respond on this subject which is particularly important to us.

Satellite dishes and antennas are allowed but they take careful coordination with the base housing office to ensure your quarters won't be damaged. I'll address many of the requirements later in this article. You need to be careful when purchasing a satellite system to know what you're buying. Satellites that cover the United States don't cover the Azores.

Regarding more channels on base, we are vigorously pursuing enhancing our television services but success will still be a while in coming. We are exploring different cable technologies that hopefully we can obtain funding for and also obtain host nation approval for frequency transmission. These are very political issues involving several diverse bureaucracies but I'm confident we will succeed.

Now, regarding installation specifications for satellite dishes and antennas, the occupant must first fill out an AF Form 332, BCE work request. You may obtain this form from the housing office in Bldg. T-408. Antennas and satellites cannot be installed on roofs. Antenna masts must be metal and securely anchored. It must be installed a minimum of 10 feet from electrical lines. No holes will be drilled through roofs, windows, doors or door casings to insert antenna leads. It must be securely anchored to withstand high winds in excess of 100 mph, vibrations - often caused by aircraft - and rain. Owners are responsible for removing antenna and mast and repairing any damage prior to termination. Satellite dishes may not exceed 60 centimeters in diameter - about 24 inches. Neither may be installed prior to approval from the housing office. If you need more information on this matter, call housing at Ext. 23507.

I am more powerful than the combined arms of the world.
I have destroyed more than all the wars of all nations.
I am more deadly than any bullet or missile, and I have wrecked more homes and jobs than the mightiest siege of guns.
I steal more than $5 billion each year in the United States alone.
I spare no one. I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, among the young and old, strong and weak, high-level and low-level workers.
Widow and orphans know me well.
I rise to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, professional as well as non-professional, from the humblest laborer to the nuclear scientist.
I kill thousands of employees each year.
I lurk in unseen places and do my best to work silently.
I am relentless.
I am everywhere on the land and the sea and in the air, in the home, on the job, on the streets and the highways.
I breed sickness, degradation, and death, yet few people make a real effort to stop me, or even take me seriously.
I destroy, crush, maim. I give nothing; I take everything.
I am your worst enemy.
I am Carelessness.

Q Why is this island called "Terceira"?

This island was named Terceira, which means third, because apparently it was the third island to be discovered by the Portuguese navigators.

Some historians, however, contend this saying the island was named Terceira because it is the third island in terms of distance from the mainland, and not necessarily the third island to be discovered by the Portuguese.

Terceira was probably discovered between 1439 and 1450. The island and the city of Angra in particular played an important role in the 15th and 16th centuries as a port of call from the galleons returning from the Americas, Africa and India loaded with treasures.

ing on the island? Is Duck Lake a suitable area?

A: The Regional Forest Services in Angra said camping is prohibited at Duck Lake.

According to the Forest Service officials, the only location under their jurisdiction that is authorized is an area called Mata da Esperança, located between the highway to Angra and Cabrito. Campfires are allowed as long as you take the necessary precautions to prevent forest fires.

Other authorized camping sites are the camping grounds of Salga, next to Salga bay near the village of Porto Judeu, and Salgueiros, a popular swimming area located just after the village of Porto Martins.

Camping at Salga grounds requires a daily fee; Salgueiros is free. You are also allowed to camp in a private property (open field or forest area) with permission from the owner.

Refrigeration project

A project costing more than $108,000 will begin this summer to replace older refrigeration units in the shoppette. According to Andy Louder, base exchange manager, the new units will be more efficient than the ones currently installed. The project also includes the installation of an ice making facility and ice cabinets will be placed in the shoppette and at the base service station. The service station will also receive two new beverage refrigeration units. The shoppette's old refrigeration units will be refurbished and reinstalled in the shoppette building when plans to consolidate the exchange at Bldg. T-207 get underway. Other projects Louder expects to take place in the near future include the addition of a walk-in refrigerator for the shoppette and walk-in freezers for the shoppette and warehouse which would be used as storage and increase product availability.

Two Lajes club members among 310 to get prizes

Winners chosen from among 14,000 entries

Two Lajes members were among 310 winners Air Force-wide in the Services club membership drive drawing. More than 14,000 entries were received.

Winners received either a mountain bike, sports bag, beach towel, T-shirt, or mug compliments of Coca-Cola, USA.

Airman First Class Veronica Haskins, 65th Security Forces Squadron, picked up a mountain bike in the drawing and SrA. Derrick Bell, 65th Medical Group, received a T-shirt.

The next drawing will be for a $5,000 shopping spree, compliments of Anheuser-Busch-and golf club sets, mountain bikes, sports trackers, coolers, beach towels, T-shirts, and mugs all compliments of Coca-Cola, USA.

"Winners in the first drawing will still be eligible to win prizes in the next two drawings as well, so don't worry if you did win a prize, you'll still be able to win the Jeep," said Kevin Small, Lajes Services Director.

New and current members are also eligible to win prizes in the second part of the member appreciation program, "Air Force Clubs and You - a Winning Tradition." This promotion runs through July 31 and thanks current club members for their loyalty while offering them an opportunity to win prizes, including a Jeep Cherokee or a $1,997 credit to their club account, courtesy of First Bankcard Center.
